INDIA SUCCESSFULLY TEST-FIRES INDIGENOUS PRALAY MISSILE

India has achieved another significant milestone in defence technology with the successful flight-test of its indigenously developed Pralay quasi-ballistic missile. The Defence Research and Development Organisation (DRDO) conducted the test on November 5, 2026, from Dr. APJ Abdul Kalam Island off the coast of Odisha at approximately 11:10 AM.

According to the Ministry of Defence, all test objectives were successfully achieved. The performance of the missile was confirmed through data collected by various tracking and monitoring instruments deployed by the Integrated Test Range (ITR), Chandipur.

The Pralay missile has been developed by Research Centre Imarat (RCI), Hyderabad, in collaboration with several other DRDO laboratories. Bharat Dynamics Limited (BDL), one of the development-cum-production partners, manufactured the missile system.

Pralay is a quasi-ballistic missile designed to carry conventional warheads. Unlike conventional ballistic missiles, quasi-ballistic missiles can follow a lower flight trajectory and perform manoeuvres during flight, making them more difficult for enemy defence systems to track and intercept.

The latest test was conducted as part of user evaluation trials in the presence of senior DRDO officials, defence personnel and industry representatives. Following the successful trial, the Ministry of Defence stated that the missile's induction into the armed forces has become imminent.

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh congratulated DRDO scientists, the armed forces and industry partners for their achievement. He noted that the successful test would strengthen India's indigenous defence capabilities, technological advancement and military preparedness.

This achievement highlights India's growing commitment to developing advanced defence systems within the country and reducing dependence on foreign military technology.

HISTORY OF INDIA FATEHPUR SIKRI – THE HISTORIC MUGHAL CITY OF UTTAR PRADESH

Fatehpur Sikri, located near Agra in Uttar Pradesh, is one of India's most remarkable historical cities and a magnificent example of Mughal architecture. It was established by the Mughal Emperor Akbar in 1571 and served as the capital of the Mughal Empire from 1571 to 1585.
The city was built to honour the famous Sufi saint Sheikh Salim Chishti, who lived in Sikri. Akbar visited the saint seeking blessings for an heir, and his son Prince Salim, who later became Emperor Jahangir, was born. In gratitude, Akbar decided to establish a grand royal city at this location.
Fatehpur Sikri features an extraordinary combination of Persian, Islamic and Indian architectural styles. Its buildings were mainly constructed using beautiful red sandstone, with detailed carvings, decorative pillars and impressive courtyards. The city reflects Akbar's artistic vision and his interest in different cultural traditions.
One of its most famous attractions is Buland Darwaza, also known as the Gate of Victory. It is a magnificent gateway built to commemorate Akbar's victory in Gujarat. Other important monuments include Jama Masjid, Panch Mahal, Diwan-i-Khas, Diwan-i-Aam and the Tomb of Sheikh Salim Chishti.

Despite its grand architecture and royal importance, Akbar abandoned Fatehpur Sikri around 1585. Strategic and administrative considerations, including difficulties with water supply, contributed to the city's decline as an imperial capital.

Today, Fatehpur Sikri is recognised as a UNESCO World Heritage Site. It attracts thousands of domestic and international visitors interested in India's history, architecture and culture.
Fatehpur Sikri remains a timeless symbol of Emperor Akbar's vision, Mughal artistic excellence and India's rich historical heritage.

- 1 small tomato (finely chopped)
- 1 green chilli (finely chopped)
- 2 tbsp coriander leaves
- ¼ tsp turmeric powder
- ½ tsp red chilli powder
- ½ tsp cumin seeds
